

Phil Shurtleff Photo

It's All in A Dog's Life

It isn't certain if patrons frequent this establishment on the way in or the way out of the Utah County Animal Shelter — or if it's open to any canine passer-by.

But the shelter, located near the billboard in south Provo's county complex is open to the public.

News about your friends, neighbors and leaders in Central Utah

fession dalism

• A commercial storage company replaced $1,500 worth of tools an American Fork man reported missing Tuesday from a rental unit in Orem on Mountain Land Dr.

FIRE — Fifteen junked cars at Dwayne's Auto Wrecking in Orem burned Tuesday evening in a fire that apparently smoldered most of the day and finally burst into flames. Investigation concluded the fire started from torch embers that continued burning after an employee removed the back axle of a car.

BURGLARY — Police caught five juveniles burglarizing the old Booth Distributing warehouse in northwest Orem, arresting the 12- and 13-year-olds and referring them to juvenile court authorities Tuesday. Police were tipped off by a telephone caller, and upon approaching the building could hear yelling inside and shattering glass. They rounded up three boys inside and two as they crawled out from under the building. All had stolen items in their possession.

• A burglar got into a Chevette parked in Carillon Square in Orem by breaking out a rear quarter window Tuesday night. Taken were 50 cassette tapes, an AM-FM stereo tape player and a red toolbox containing tools — items valued at $550.

VANDALISM — Police dismissed arson as the motive behind a fire that apparently burned itself out at the site of a new house under construction at 458 E. 950 N. in Orem. Detective Mike Larsen, investigating Wednesday, concluded vandals to apply for the higher levels this year.

Nebo: Career Ladder Program Gains OK

(Continued from Page 1)

Tenured teachers who are not accepted into either of the higher levels will receive their traditional salaries and be considered Level Two teachers.

Teachers with five years of experience, two of which must be in the Nebo School District, are eligible to apply for Levels Three and Four in the career ladder program.

Each school within the district has been assigned a quota for the number of teachers which can be assigned to Level Three.

Level Three teachers must be "willing and qualified to take on additional responsibilities directly related to the improvement of teaching," such as coaching new teachers, developing curriculum or conducting workshops. They will receive an extra $1,000 per year.

Teachers who qualify for Level Four must have "excellent teaching skills and ability to help other teachers improve their teaching effectiveness." These teachers will be assigned to work within the entire district, but "it is not intended that they become involved in administrative work," according to the report submitted to the state school board.

Quotas for Level Four were established based on academic areas rather than individual schools. Among secondary schools, for example, one Level Four teacher will be selected for each of 14 academic areas in the district (such as math, science, social studies, etc.) and three will be chosen from vocational education.

Level Four teachers will receive an extra $1,000 per year and a 15-day contract extension.

Applications to Levels Three and Four will be made to district supervisors, who will channel all applications to a committee of administrators, teachers and parents.

All applicants must then be approved by the school board.

Maughan says many teachers are concerned about the evaluation process.

"Evaluation in this district has not been as good as it should have been and could have been. There are going to be a lot of feeling hurt."

Goodrich says the district hopes to assign teachers to Level Four next month. Assignments to Level Three will be made in September.

That will give teachers who applied unsuccessfully for Level Four the opportunity to apply for Level Three, he says.

McGuff The Crime Dog

TAKE A BITE OUT OF CRIME™

©1981 The Advertising Council, Inc.
A message from the Crime Prevention Council and the Ad Council.

BUNKBED SALE

8 Hrs.
Sat. 10-6

PHOTOGRAPHY/TOM SMART

Traffic has ground to a halt on Third South in Provo, now turned into a channel churning with Slate Creek runoff water.

12 SPEED BIKES

with 100's of Items